

SINGLE GEAR FREAK LOOKING FOR STABILITY

Sometimes it is referred to as “the ATV of fishing kayaks.” The Wilderness Systems Ride 135 features a pontoon-style hull that is so stable and spacious, you’ll be able to stand up in the cockpit to cast or fight a fish, then walk back to the tankwell and get a cold drink out of the cooler.

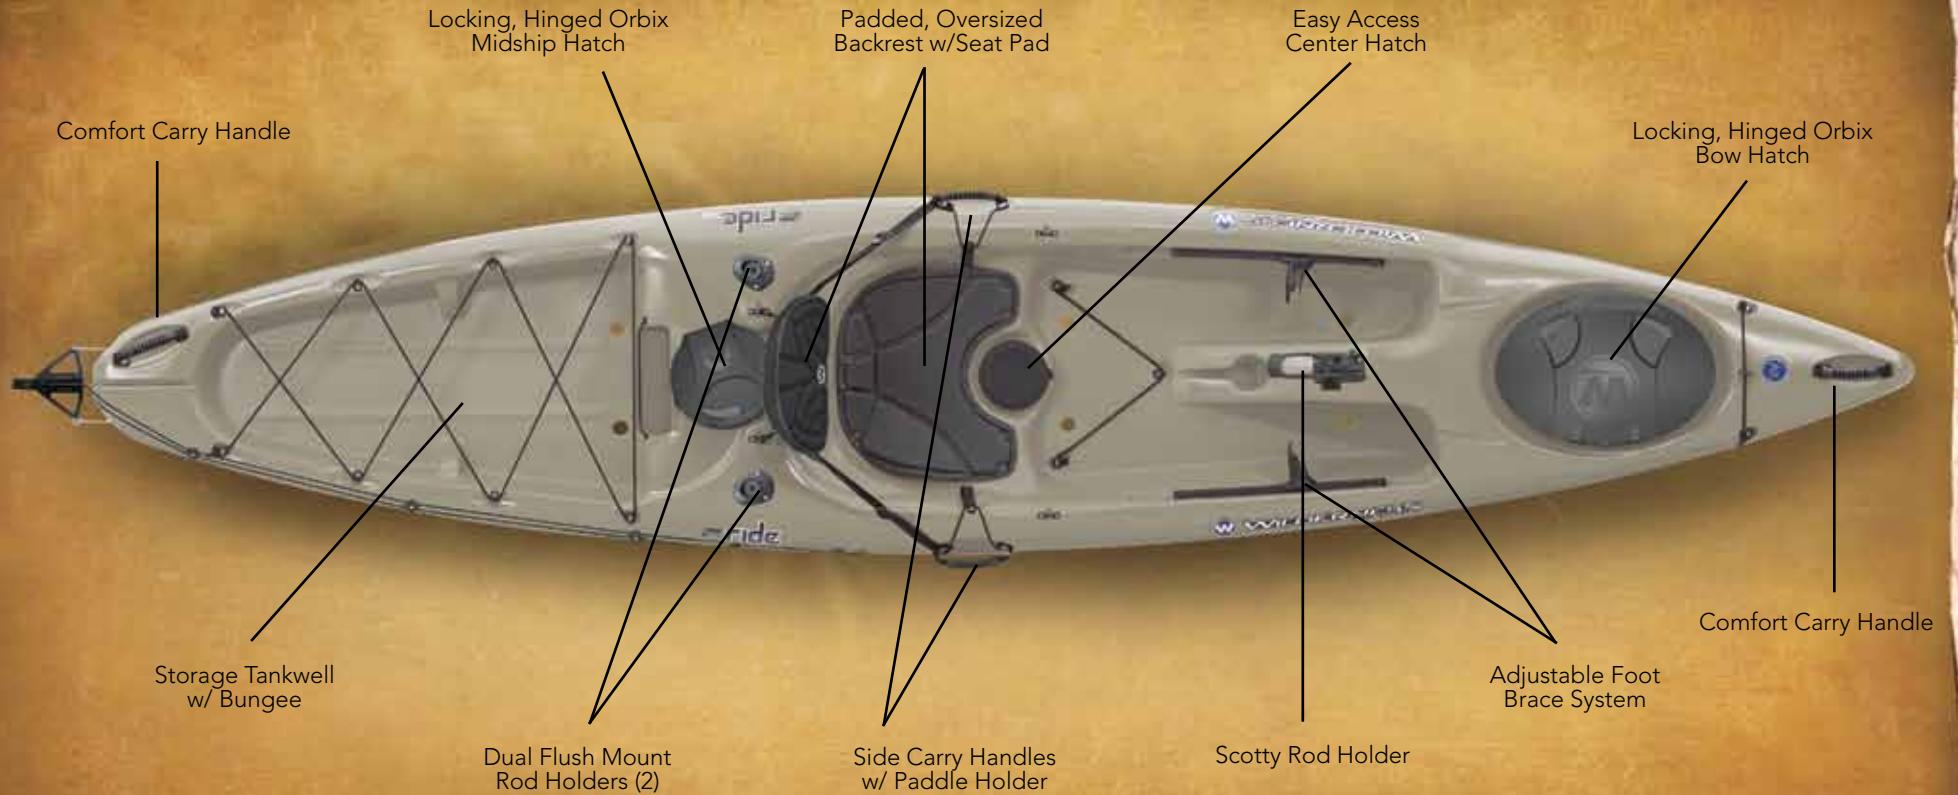

This comfortable, go-anywhere boat is excellent for short or mid-range trips, and its hallmark stability allows sitting or standing, including side straddling for long periods of time with ease. Unlike many boats with this kind of stability, The Ride still paddles remarkably well.

And even the most outfitted angler will find storage room in The Ride because of ample deck space and high volume tankwell. Got every Super Fluke known to man? Bring them all with plenty of room to spare.

Whether it’s chasing the catch into hard to reach places, sight fishing without sending them scattering, or if you’re a big boy with lots of toys, The Ride leaves other craft in its class far behind.
